

Hairball Trio

Investigator Noel Raizman, a young physician who, for professional reasons, is occasionally fascinated by hairballs, selected these three as his current favorite citations.

Hairball (1)

“An Enormous Gastro-Intestinal Hairball” [author’s translation of title; article in French], F. Imani, J. Gillet, N. Benyahya, F. Sebti, Journal de Radiologie, d’Electrologie et de Médecine Nucléaire, vol. 58, no. 2, February 1977, pp. 159-60.

Hairball (2)

“Learn How to Cough Up That Hairball!” C.K. Wison, Aspens Advisor for Nurse Executives, vol. 13, no. 9, June 1998, p. 2.

Hairball (3)

“Recurrent Urethral Hairball and Stone in a Hypospadiac: Management and Prevention,” I. Singh and A.K. Hemal, Journal of Endourology, vol. 15, no. 6, August 2001, pp. 645-7.

HMO-NO News

Health care advice to pass on to your patients

Animal-Tested Meds

There is no need for medical patients to spend all their savings on vital medications. We are proud to announce the HMO-NO Cheap Meds™ Program. Under this program, patients will have to option* to be prescribed the veterinary versions of their medications. These have the dual advantages of being thoroughly animal-tested -- and of being considerably less expensive than the hitherto-standard brands.

HMO-NO. Because we care about you, and your pocketbook.

* Note: Surcharges may apply to patients who decline this option.

 Note: Surcharges may apply to patients who do not decline this option.

HMO-NO

The very final word in health care